Ball State head women’s basketball coach Kelly Packard enters her fourth year at the helm of the Cardinals. Although the Cardinals lost their leading scorer and rebounder from last season in Emily Magee, Packard returns three seniors that saw favorable time last year in Megan Craft, Amber Crago and Suzanne Grossnickle. Both Crago and Grossnickle were true freshmen who helped the Cardinals claim their first-ever NCAA Tournament victory as it handed Tennessee its only first round NCAA Tournament loss in program history in 2009. During the course of their freshman season, Ball State won its third straight MAC West Division title and earned the school’s first MAC Tournament. Crago and Grossnickle have also been tabbed as the 2011-12 women’s basketball team captains.

Q: What is your coaching philosophy this season?
A: Our focus for the 2011-2012 season is to function from a mindset of sacrifice. The physical and mental demands of Division I athletics are extensive and intense. Such demands can be approached from several different mindsets. You can do: What’s convenient! You can do: What’s expected OR You can do: What’s a sacrifice.

The mindset and commitment to go beyond what is expected is a daily discussion.

Q: Describe your seniors and how they will impact the program this year?
A: Seniors are uniquely special. I am always ultra aware of our seniors, and I don’t miss opportunities to verbally express my tenderness toward their time spent here in our program. Amber Crago and Suzanne Grossnickle have been selected to serve as team captains. Though their leadership qualities are vastly different, it is their desire to serve together as they complement one another. On the court, Amber and Suzanne bring experience and depth to our interior game. Both have logged significant “paint” minutes during their career, and have the familiarity of our coaching staff’s technical approach to the game. We will be relying on the paint rebounding efforts of Amber and Suzanne to anchor a core statistical category of the game.

Megan Craft commands respect. Her work ethic and selfless attitude are consistently evident. Megan models the balance of being a student-athlete. Her commitment to excel in the classroom transfers onto the youth of our program. On the floor, Megan has defined herself as a high percentage perimeter shooter throughout her basketball career at all levels. Her teammates have a great awareness of Megan’s location on the floor, and strong confidence in her ability to make shots. Megan posted a blistering .549 (.23-42) field goal percentage from the 3-point arc last season.

Q: Talk about the sophomores and juniors on this year’s team?
A: Juniors Shanee Jackson and Mercedes Miller have flourished in our 2011 pre-season. They are comfortable with our technical systems and approach, and it is reflected in their overall confidence on the floor. Shanee has earned the reputation of a stifling defender throughout our conference. She changes the flow of the opponents’ offensive movements, and sets the tone for our defensive intensity. Mercedes sets the standard for physical preparation and effort. She places a priority on the physical training, and the time required in the repetition of the skills of the game, to come back a better player each season. Their growth in all facets of the game is visible.

Sophomores Jaz Hitchens, Jordan Huber, Kate Murphy and Brandy Woody return with increased confidence. It is typical amongst college coaches to discuss the vast growth that occurs between the freshman and sophomore years. They make “easy” shots look “easy,” and they just seem more comfortable in their own skin on the court. Movements are more natural than careful. They each saw valuable minutes during their freshmen season. Brandy started all 30 games. As a freshmen class, they combined for a total of 54 starts which accelerated their on-court growth.

Q: Name one thing that stands out in your mind about the freshmen class this season?
A: This freshman class has personality overload! It has been fun to watch them merge into the environment of our program with such consistent energy. Broad smiles light up the coaching staff’s hallway, the court and the locker room on a daily basis. It is a challenge to enter a new situation confident, yet not seemingly arrogant.

Q: Talk about your preseason schedule and Mid-American Conference play.
A: I am pleased with our 2011-12 non-conference schedule. It is the result of a regional and in-state strategy. It is also reflective of strategic efforts to position a young team for early success, as the schedule contains eight home games. We will visit Wisconsin-Green Bay, a program that finished ninth in the nation in the 2011 NCAA women’s basketball rankings. The non-conference schedule includes three in-state opponents: Evansville, Butler, and Valparaiso. The announcement of the Mid-American Conference schedule always elevates the anticipation toward the upcoming season. Dates are now attached to rival opponents, and the overall focus of competition becomes specific to a particular sequence of dates. The 2011-2012 schedule presents the opportunity to begin conference play in Worthen Arena. Further opportunity is presented at the final stretch of the MAC schedule with three out of our four final games being played on our home court.

Jo Ann Gora began serving as Ball State's 14th president in August 2004. Under her leadership, the university has made immersive learning the hallmark of every Ball State student’s college experience. From 2007-2010, nearly 8,200 students completed more than 600 immersive learning projects throughout Indiana and beyond.

Gora has led the development and implementation of the university’s Education Redefined strategic plan, which was the basis of the university’s capital campaign. Ball State Bold. It concluded in June 2011 and topped its $200 million goal by more than $10 million.

Since Gora’s arrival, Ball State has been in the midst of an unprecedented era of campus improvement. For the eight-year period ending in 2012, the university is spending approximately $418 million on major construction and renovation projects. Gora was one of 12 charter signatories to the American College and University Presidents’ Climate Commitment in 2006. She has led Ball State’s sustainability efforts, including its geothermal energy project, the largest of its kind in the country. This fall, the university completes Phase One of the project, shutting down two coal-fired boilers and saving more than $1 million annually in operational efficiencies.

In 2009, Gora earned the Mira Trailblazer Award from TechPoint for her significant and lasting contributions to technology innovation in Indiana. She is a member of the American Council on Education’s Board of Directors and the Association of Governing Boards’ Council of Presidents. She chairs the Mid-American Conference Presidents’ Council and co-chairs the Central Indiana Corporate Partnership. She serves on the boards of the Indiana Chamber of Commerce, First Merchants Bank, and Ball Memorial Hospital.
Among our more than 152,000 living alumni are renowned entertainers, top corporate executives, leading educators, and members of the Indiana General Assembly.

Ball State student-athletes have collected 40 Academic All-America First Team honors, while earning 32 second team awards, 13 third team awards and six honorable mention awards. Two student-athletes -- Sally Northcroft (1999-2000) and Kate Endress (2004-05) -- have been honored as an Academic All-American of the Year. The Cardinals' 93 Academic All-America selections is among the nation's leaders in Academic All-America history by NCAA Division I schools. Ball State's women's basketball program is tied for fifth all-time among Division I Academic All-Americans with nine. The ESPN The Magazine Academic All-America teams are selected by the College Sports Information Directors of America.
