The Cardinals storm the field after defeating Miami University in penalty kicks to reach the championship game of the 2013 Mid-American Conference Tournament.
The Briner Sports Complex opened for the 2011 season. It includes the soccer facility and an entryway for the soccer, field hockey and track facilities.

The $1.7 million project is known as the Briner Sports Complex to recognize the outstanding contribution of Ken and Peggy Briner, who are longtime loyal fans and contributors to Ball State Athletics.

Since moving across campus to open the complex in 2011, the Cardinals have posted a home record of 15-7-5 at the complex.
The Ball State soccer team is looking to continue its climb in 2014 under the direction of Craig Roberts.

The Cardinals have improved in each of their previous seasons under the fifth-year head coach, reaching an overall mark of 11-7-4 and a spot in the championship game of the Mid-American Conference Tournament in 2013.

Ball State returns 20 letterwinners, including four of its top five goal scorers from a year ago, led by Victoria Jacobs and her five goals in 2013.

The Cardinals welcome back All-MAC midfielder Madison Oyer, who made an immediate impact in her first season in Muncie. On the back line, Jacobs, Cailey Starck and MAC All-Freshman selection Leah Mattingly return after playing nearly every minute in 2013.

Brooke Dennis will look to take ownership in goal after splitting time with the graduated Layne Schramm for a team that ranked as the league’s best in goals against average last year. Dennis will be challenged by incoming keeper Alyssa Heintschel.

Heintschel is one of seven freshmen joining the Cardinals this season on a team that features a nice mixture of experience and youth.

• Roberts became the fourth head coach in program history in 2010, taking over a team that won only four games the year before his arrival.

• He has improved the Cardinals’ winning percentage each season, leading to the program’s best record in six years at 11-7-4 in 2013.

• Roberts led Ball State to the championship game of the MAC Tournament for the first time ever in 2013, coming up just short against a Western Michigan team that went on to defeat Marquette in the first round of the NCAA Tournament.

• His teams have posted 24 shutouts during his time at Ball State. The Cardinals recorded nine shutouts in 2013, just one shy of the school record.

• Twice in his four years, the Cardinals have spoiled an opponent’s perfect MAC record in the final game of the regular season. The 2010 team defeated a Toledo squad that was previously unbeaten and untied in league play, and the 2012 team played Miami University to a draw to end its perfect MAC season.

• Roberts has coached four All-MAC players at Ball State in Madison Oyer (2013), Pavla Bercova (2012), Brigit Reder (2011) and Missy Gordon (2010). A total of six players have been named to the MAC All-Freshman Team under his watch.

• The Cardinals have also excelled in the classroom under Roberts, earning an NSCAA Team Academic Award in each of his years with the program. He has coached five Capital One Academic All-District selections, including Skylar Chew three times. The Cardinals have also had 12 Academic All-MAC selections and six NSCAA Scholar All-Region honorees.

• In 2012, Chew became the first Ball State soccer player to be named a first-team Academic All-American.

• Before coming to Ball State, Roberts spent four seasons at UT Martin as the most successful coach in the program’s history.

2014 Ball State Soccer
Paul W. Ferguson began his duties as Ball State's 15th president in August 2014. Prior to his arrival at the university, he served as president of the University of Maine for three years. There, he led the Blue Sky Project, an inclusive campus planning and implementation process, to raise Maine to new levels of excellence as the most distinctively student-centered and community-engaged of the American research universities. Ferguson has a demonstrated record of transforming universities, especially in the areas of academic quality and student success, increased research and economic development, partnerships between the university and community, and faculty development.

Before his arrival at Maine, Ferguson spent five years as provost and vice chancellor for academic affairs at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville, where he also was professor of pharmacology and toxicology. He implemented five major initiatives there, improving academic quality and assessment, student success, faculty development, educational outreach, and enrollment management. The university received national recognition for its academic innovation, culture of assessment, and commitment to continuous quality improvement.

An accomplished scholar with a record of achievement spanning more than three decades, Ferguson began his academic career as assistant professor of pharmacology and toxicology at the University of Louisiana at Monroe (ULM). There, he established the first undergraduate toxicology program in the South while leading research and outreach efforts aimed at assessing potential risks from chemical exposures throughout Louisiana. After five years working as senior toxicologist for Unocal Corp. in Los Angeles, he returned to ULM, where he earned awards as professor and head of the Division of Pharmacology and Toxicology. In 1993, he was appointed dean of graduate studies and research, and in 1995, he was named vice provost.

In 1999, Ferguson came to the University of Nevada, Las Vegas as professor and dean of the Graduate College. He helped the university realize its vision of becoming a premier metropolitan research university by serving in a number of leadership roles, including senior vice provost and vice president for research and graduate studies. In the latter position, he led the continued development of the UNLV research and graduate education enterprise, which saw annual extramural funding increase from $59 million to $95 million and the number of graduate programs rise from 74 to 108.

A Southern California native, Ferguson graduated from Whittier College and later earned a doctoral degree in pharmacology and toxicology at the University of California, Davis in 1981. Between his undergraduate and graduate studies, he worked as a research specialist at the Los Angeles County-University of Southern California Medical Center and as a research biologist for Pennwell Corp.

Ferguson and his wife, Grace, have been married for 40 years and have three children. David lives in Houston, Texas, where he is a postdoctoral research scientist at the Baylor College of Medicine; Kathryn and her husband, Bobby Bowman, live in New York City, where she completed her studies at NYU School of Medicine; and Jenny recently earned her bachelor's degree at the University of Maine, where she majored in political science.
