Biographical Note:

Thomas A. McConnaughey (1907-1972) was born near Hartford City, Indiana. He attended Carnegie Institute of Technology and was an apprentice architect with the firm of Houck & Hamilton in Muncie. He and Ivo Hemmert, who also apprenticed with Houck & Hamilton, opened an architectural practice in Hartford City during the 1930s, doing business as McConnaughey & Hemmert. The two men went their separate ways during World War II but teamed up again after the war, this time as Hemmert & McConnaughey. That firm was dissolved around 1952. McConnaughey (who was known as "Al") came to Marion while Hemmert remained in Hartford City, practicing by himself until the late 1960s. McConnaughey formed another partnership, with Gerald Guy, in 1956. McConnaughey & Guy broke their partnership in 1964. Both men stayed in Marion practicing individually.

Scope and Contents:

The collection consists of 58 rolls of drawings for architectural projects. Most of the projects are in east-central Indiana. Most are by Thomas A. McConnaughey and firms with which he was associated, including Hemmert & McConnaughey, McConnaughey & Associates, and McConnaughey & Guy. Other firms represented are Houck & Hamilton, Hamilton & Graham, Walter Scholer & Associates, C. R. Gollogly, Fleck Burkhardt & Shropshire, Orus Eash, Louis C. Kingscott, McGuire & Shook, C. Daniel Zimmerman, E. Hill Turnock, R. W. Clinton, Houck & Smenner, and Everett & Eugene Brown. The period covered is ca. 1927-1971. McConnaughey's work includes Parkside Elementary School in Hartford City, said to be the first totally electric school (1954), as well as many other schools, banks, churches, nursing homes, and residences.
