Historical Note:

The firm began doing business in 1976 under the name Landplus, landscape architects, with Stan Geda as principal. Soon the name was changed to Landplus West (LPW)--the "west" in the title reflecting LPW's affiliation with another landscape architecture firm, TMR Associates, located in Hartford, Connecticut. Initially based in Muncie, LPW moved to Yorktown, Indiana, by 1978. Partners in the business about that time, in addition to Geda, were Jim Anderson, Tom Stearns, John Russell, and John Kissida. Deane Rundell, German Cruz, Joe Cascio (a Ball State University alumnus), and Bill Probst (civil engineer) became partners in LPW. Rundell later served as managing principal. Several Ball State landscape architecture students worked at LPW. The firm closed in September 1983, with Geda moving the practice to Tampa, Florida.
