Biographical Note:

Gladys J. Miller (1926-1993) was born Gladys Jacquelyn Good in Riverton, New Jersey. She received a Bachelor of Architecture degree from the University of Pennsylvania in 1949. Recipient of the university's Murchison Prize in 1948, she traveled extensively throughout Europe. She worked in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania and in Terre Haute, Indiana as draftsman in the offices of Alfred Bendiner (1948-50), Bolton, Martin & White (1950), and Miller & Vrydagh (1951-53), and then as a designer with Miller, Vrydagh & Miller (1954-57). In 1958, she organized her own firm, based in Terre Haute, specializing in residential architecture. She used the names Gladys J. Miller and Gladys Good Miller professionally. Also a registered architect in Ohio, Miller is said to have been the third registered woman architect in Indiana.

Scope and Contents:

The collection consists of architectural drawings for 50 projects by Gladys J. Miller of Terre Haute, Indiana, executed between ca. 1950 and 1979. Most of the projects are residential in nature, located in and near Terre Haute. Among these are houses for Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Cox (1959) and Margaret Jane Adamson (1961), the conversion of a barn into a residence for Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Prox, Jr. (1978), and a remodeling of the Indiana State University president's house (1965). Other projects include the Covered Bridge Girl Scout Council Headquarters

Building in Fairbanks Park, the Dobbs Park Nature Center (1973, 1975, both in association with Archonics Corp.), and an addition to and remodeling of the United Daycare Center (1976).
