This work covers the Brazilian-import, Spiritist movement in Paris, France. In particular the work examines the educational structures in two centers, L'Association Parisienne des Études Spirite and Centre des Études d'Allen Kardec. Within these two centers, two different structures serve the same role of homogenizing beliefs while allowing for heterogenizing importation.