

Thesis Question

Should there be a redesign in educational spaces to better accommodate for the future of education in terms of our dependence on technology, our human nature to want to learn and our societal changes towards a more inclusive future?

Abstract

There should be an urge to redesign educational spaces because the aforementioned factors do apply to numerous educational systems in many countries. Technology has now become a widespread tool we can take advantage of. Not only children or teens should be allowed to learn but adults should also be encouraged. Our society is become more and more diverse exposing us to information we can surely take advantage of and learn more about.

A new educational facility needs to be designed that integrates different cultures and age groups. There are already numerous different types of educational facilities in the world. A combination of a couple of these preexisting facilities can create a Cultural Hub that focuses on the Future of Education within the Community.
