Get Your Fair On!

By Emilee Wolfley

The Career Fair will take place on February 21, 2013, in Worthen Arena, near the gate 1 entrance this semester! Our very own Student Veteran Organization will have a table set up so you can talk to them about the group and upcoming events, meetings, and elections. Stop by and say hi! Furthermore, the Career Fair is important to attend if you have the time because it gives you a chance to interview with potential employers, network with them, or even find out more information about positions that you may want when you graduate. Even if you are only a freshman or sophomore, this experience is still highly valuable to you. There are internship possibilities and the chance to get to know an employer who may one day want you for their company! It is never too early to start looking for jobs, building your resume, and figuring out what your future holds for you. Around one hundred companies will be in attendance. Any major will be recruited at the fair, and the listing of available employers can be found by logging in to your Cardinal Career Link account through the Ball State website. Veterans are some of the most employable people in the country, so why not start looking now?

This is an interrobang symbol. It's used to express tons of emotion in the form of a question and exclamation point. Love the word. Love the symbol.

Oh NO, We're Moving!

By Emilee Wolfley

Don't worry guys, we aren't going far. Some time in the next couple of weeks the Veterans Affairs offices will be relocated so far away that it is completely unbelievable that this should be legal. I'm totally kidding. We will be located right around the corner from where we currently are in Lucina 204 and 205 to Lucina 236 and 237. These offices will be housing everything our current one does, except they are a bit smaller. That just means coziness! :) Also, our phone number and fax numbers will remain the same as well as our email. Nothing is changing except the physical location of the office. Don't worry! Anyway, don't get confused when in a few weeks, you turn the corner the wrong way and find our current office empty. We are still going to be in Lucina, just in a little different spot. Happy hunting!

P.S. We would appreciate any house warming gifts in the form of cookies, candy, chocolate, or coffee. They can be hand delivered with smiling faces and hugs. I take any and all donations! But seriously, don't forget. We're moving. But we aren't going to leave you guys. We will still be here for your everyday concerns and questions!
